

Physician Assistant

Career Opportunities

you can expand your physician assistant (PA) career opportunities with a fellowship in a medical or surgical specialty from the University of Illinois College of Medicine at Rockford. Spend a year working side by side with specialists in community-based medical practices including, but not limited to, cardiology, nephrology, orthopedics and urology.

After graduation, you will receive a certificate of completion from your fellowship program, signifying your extended training in your specialty. You now have highly-marketable clinical skills, offering you more career opportunities within your scope of practice, as a College of Medicine at Rockford PA Fellow.
